

By JENNIFER
GOULD KEIL

Heard any great gossip? E-mail: jkeil@nypost.com
Follow me on Twitter @JanGouldKeil

Art attack

In the 1970s, the late art curator Susan Sollins co-founded a nonprofit that is now called Independent Curators International. A museum without walls, as Sollins liked to think of it, it produced traveling art exhibits and brought avant-garde work to college towns across the world. Sollins' 14th-floor apartment at 15 E. 26th St., just north of Madison Square Park, has just hit the market for $5.3 million. Douglas Elliman's Frances Katzen has the listing.