

October 30, 2013

What A Condo In The Country's Third Most Expensive Zip Code Will Actually Cost You

Living in one of the country's most expensive zip codes is going to be, well, expensive.

If it's still unclear what that means exactly, take this recent listing on New York's Upper East Side, for example.

Photo via Hundred Stories/Douglas Elliman

The sun-drenched, six-bedroom, five-and-a-half bath condo is situated at a corner of the swanky Seville apartment building on Manhattan's East 77th Street. It's also got four-exposure skyline views and a dining room big enough to fit 20 guests.

At just over 4,000 square feet, listing agency Douglas Elliman is calling the property the lowest priced six-bedroom condo in the neighborhood.

Photo via Hundred Stories/Douglas Elliman

Price: $8,500,000

Monthly Common Charges: $3,998

Monthly tax: $2,934

Check out some more listings that Forbes compiled of homes in the 100 priciest zip codes across the U.S. and more on this property from the Tavivian Sporn Team at Douglas Elliman.